"On serait fente de lui dire, Bonjour, Mademoiselle la Bergeronnette."—V.

Though the voice of modern schools Has demurred, By the dreamy Asian creed "Tis averred, That the souls of men, released From their bodies when deceased, Sometimes enter in a beast-Or a bird.

I have watched you long, Avice— Watched you so, I have found your secret out;

And I know That the restless ribboned things, Where your slope of shoulder springs, Are but undeveloped wings That will grow.

When you enter in a room, It is stirred With the wayward flashing flight Of a bird: And you speak—and bring with you Leaf and sun-ray, bud and blue,

And the wind-breath and the dew Ata word. When you called to me my name, Then again

When I heard your single cry In the lane, All the sound was as the "sweet" Which the birds to birds repeat, In their thank-song to the heat After rain.

When you sang the "Schwalbenlied" Twas absurd -But it seemed no human note

That I heard: For your strain had all the trills, All the little shakes and stills, Of the over-song that rills From a bird.

You have just their eager, quick "Airs de tete," All their flush and fever-heat

Every bird-like nod and beck, And a bird's own curve of neck When she gives a little peck To her mate.

When you left me, only now, In that furred, Puffed, and feathered Polish dress, I was spurred Just to eatch you, O my sweet, By the bodice trim and neat,

Just to feel your heart a-beat, Like a bird. Yet, alas! Love's light you deign

But to wear As the dew upon your plumes,

And you care. Not a whit for rest or hush; But the leaves-the lyric gush, And the wing-power, and the rush

Of the air. So I dare not woo you, Sweet, For a day, Lest I loose you in a flash, As I may; Did I tell you tender things,

You would shake your sudden wings; You would start from him who sings, And away. A. D.

Cleanse Your Premises.

The warm weather is here, and it behooves every citizen to cleanse his premises of all offensive matter in order that they may become pure and healthy. There is no doubt at all that a great deal of the sickness visiting families, pro-ceeds from filthy cellars, sinks, yards, outhouses, styes, &c. These things are neglected by many, as are other duties, from pure thoughtlessness, while others never dream of paying any aftention to them. There are several remedies for them. There are several remedies for this most unhealthy condition of things, that can be easily applied. The first is to put one pint of the liquor of chloride of zinc in one bucketful of water, and one pound of chloride of lime in another one pound of chloride of lime in another bucketful of water, add-and sprinkle overdecayed vegetable matter. For this purpose nothing surpasses it; indeed it is a perfect deodorizer. The second is to take three or four pounds of substants. cases prove a sure remedy in destroying all offensive odors. The third is to take simple chloride of iron and sprinkle in damp cellars, heaps of filth, dirty yards, &c., &c. The labor of cleansing ones premises by either of these remedia. to take three or four pounds of sulphate trifling, and the expense is not worth mentioning. If it were ten times great-er, both the labor and expense should be willingly incurred.
